Making the transition from high-school or transferring from another college is a true milestone, and we're happy you're interested in learning more about joining the Lion family at Missouri Southern State University. The Allied Health Programs at Missouri Southern State University focus on preparing graduates to enter the workforce. We employ a variety of immersive learning experiences to teach real world skills for our future healthcare providers. Students can expect to get hands-on experience within their chosen course of study, as well as a robust classroom education that will support their success as a healthcare provider.
